Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Wednesday 13 Jan 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Rain spreading east bringing a risk of snow in north.

Today:
Band of rain moves east bringing a risk of sleet, snow and ice to parts of northern England and Scotland, while clearing central and southwest England and Wales during the morning.

Tonight:
Rain, sleet and snow in north and east of the UK, with some heavier falls of snow over hills in north. Rain turning heavy, across west Wales and northwest England.

Thursday:
Further rain across England, Wales and Scotland, falling as sleet and snow in places, but clearing south and east through the afternoon. Drier with some sunshine across Northern Ireland.

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Many areas dry Friday. Rain spreads across the northwest later, this crossing all parts Saturday. Dry in the south, showers in the north later Saturday and through Sunday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.